SOUTHEASTERN

Whiteville, N.C.

Southeastern Community College is one of North Carolina's 58 community colleges and technical institutes as recognized by the State Board of Education. Located on U.S. 74-76 business between Whiteville and Chadbourn, SCC, while surrounded by rural communities, is within 50 miles of the Atlantic Coast and such major cities as Wilmington and Myrtle Beach. As one of North Carolina's largest and fastest growing community colleges, SCC serves over 6000 students annually in college transfer, vocational, and adult educational programs. While students are top priority, the college serves its community well with various services, including counseling, women's center, Resources for Student Learning, and Retired Senior Volunteer Program. SCC attracts students largely from the surrounding counties of Columbus, Bladen, Brunswick, Robeson, and New Hanover; but, students from such diverse areas as New York, the Virgin Islands, Jamaica, and even Iran, are not uncommon. It is this meshing of the familiar and the new, the urban and the rural, that makes SCC an important part of both the educational structure and the community.

INTERACTION

N T E R A C T I O N

Southeastern Community College successfully incorporates four-year college ideas with local practicality. The school is large enough to offer the student an exceptional education and small enough for him to develop one-on-one relationships with teachers and administrators.

The students and staff intermingle in many school-related activities including camping and canoeing trips, SGA conventions, choir activities, and educational trips to Washington, D.C., Greece, and Europe.

Equally important, whether it be completely off-campus or seated on a picnic table during breaks, is the time spent aside from the numerous perplexities of school life. Here, maybe more so than in class, the student and teacher can communicate as individuals with both mutual and conflicting interests and needs. There is time to learn from one another, to reinforce each other's beliefs, and, dare I say it? to disagree.

It is these interactions, whether they be politically, religiously, or artistically oriented — or just plain small talk — that spawn a comfortable and creative atmosphere here at SCC.

THE ATLANTA BALLET

made its fourth appearance at SCC on October 11 in the college auditorium. The performance featured "Allegro Brillante," "Bagatelles," "L'Occurrence" and "O.P.U.S. 13" choreographed by nationally renowned choreographers. George Balanchine, perhaps the world's most famous choreographer, choreographed "Allegro Brillante" while Ferdinand Nault choreographed "O.P.U.S. 13" and Tom Pazik of the Atlanta Ballet the remaining two selections.

The Atlanta Ballet, founded by Dorothy Alexander in 1929, is a part of the founding of the ballet movement in America and was the first ballet company to be formed outside of New York City. As the first regional ballet company, the Atlanta Ballet, in 1956, hosted the first regional ballet festival and was instrumental in establishing the guidelines and precedents which have led to the formation of over 400 regional ballet companies in the five regional jurisdictions; it is also one of four major companies in the National Association for Regional Ballet.

In 1973 the Atlanta Ballet Touring Ensemble was formed under the artistic direction of Robert Barnett. The touring ensemble is a member of the National Endowment for the Arts Dance Program and performs residencies throughout the country. This year alone, the dancers will have traveled more than 30,000 miles. In addition to the company's regular touring schedule, the company presents a full season of performances at the Fox Theatre and performs regularly in more than 20 of Atlanta's city parks.

The company offers lecture demonstrations in classical ballet technique, as well as demonstrations in basic movement, masterclasses, seminars, mini-concerts, workshops, history of dance and stage technology, and company management.

During their three-day residency at SCC, the troupe conducted masterclasses designed especially for area dance instructors and their students, and presented a mid-day performance on the history of dance.

This project was jointly supported by a grant from the North Carolina Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D.C. and the Southeastern Community College Performing Arts Committee.

Evans of Fair Bluff, Miss Evans competed with eight other young ladies in the area of streetwear, swimsuit, evening gown and talent along with personal interviews with the judges. A freshman at SCC, Miss Evans plans to complete her education and then use her talents in the music field.

Miss Evans replaces Kellie DeAnne Lewis of Whiteville as Miss SCC. Miss Lewis performed a ballet style modern dance as part of the pageant's entertainment.

First and second runners-up to Miss SCC were Joy Denise Owen of Riegelwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Owen, and Donna E. Long of Nakina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Long, respectively. Miss Carolyn Logan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Logan, was chosen Miss Congeniality by her pageant peers in a secret vote. Other contestants for the event included Jenny Ivey, Demure Nixon, Rose Register, Velma Sessions and Ann White.

Rams Win First ETJCC Title

The wins gave the Rams an automatic birth in the Region 10 Junior College Basketball Tournament in Anderson, S.C., where they defeated Mitchell Community in the first round but lost to Spartanburg Methodist in the second round.

Charles Webb was voted to the All ETJCC Tournament First Team as Clayton White was voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player. Webb and White led the Rams in the regular season finale over Chowan with 31 points, 8 rebounds and 24 points, 9 rebounds each, respectively. Audie Malone and Jeff Morrissey also played a big part in the victory scoring 11 and 19 points each, respectively.

"Everyone played a big part in our success this year and all are real champions," exclaimed Coach Harry Foley. "We have a lot to be proud of." — E.M.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Aldous Huxley once said, "Technical progress has merely provided us with more efficient means of going backwards." These words are not reassuring. We have watched great technological progress ever since, only to see the traditional problems of mankind repeat themselves. Global aggression, international threats, interest-group conflicts, and waste amid human need continue to shadow the history of man. Man's journey will progress only when he acquires a wisdom transcending his own destructive selfishness.

We hope our brief sojourn together will help you make true progress on this complex journey.

An appropriate subtitle for this annual could be "Progress Through Wisdom" and would be very indicative of the human experience that has taken place at SCC this year. This special experience is perhaps more crucial in the college experience than tests, book work, labs and other academic activities that a college primarily provides. People grow wiser through interaction with others; it's all part of the growing up and maturing process.

And indeed the SCC faculty, staff and students have created a great social and educational atmosphere which is much needed in college life for the student to receive a well-rounded education in academics, social growth and leadership. This kind of education has been reflected in the production of the 1980 RAMBLINGS where nine conscientious and perseverant students worked overtime to produce a quality result. This is but one part of college life which mandates high performance or else it just doesn't get done. The reward is the experience received from having worked in such a manner to produce a positive and useful result.

This is what we, the RAMBLINGS staff, are all about.

For His Contributions To SCC
Students*

Complete dedication to the student is Alan Brownlee's trademark in his profession. And it shows! A Humanities instructor at SCC, Alan goes far beyond his duties for the benefit and educational and cultural enrichment of the individual student. Among many of his contributions are his organizing of the SCC Country Dancers (shown in performance Above right), the Model U.N. For area high school students, and various musical exhibitions on campus (shown below right with a hammered dulcimer). Loved and respected by all who meet him, Alan adds a special meaning to college for SCC students.
